The Esther Foundation

“The Esther Foundation is the largest young women’s residential recovery program of its kind in Australia. Over almost 15 years, the Foundation has grown from a small drug rehabilitation program to what is now an extensive and award-winning young women’s residential, development and leadership program based in South Perth.

The Foundation provides intensive support for young women to overcome life-controlling struggles and issues in a safe, structured and supportive environment. It currently operates 10 residential premises housing more than 45 young mothers, young women and children. The broadly structured program facilitates specific groups and individual counselling to help manage socially prevalent issues and concerns faced by young women, including substance abuse, sexual and emotional abuse, domestic violence, mental health, pregnancy, self-harm, family breakdown, bullying, depression and eating disorders.

Much-needed support is received from the corporate sector and public donations to deliver this essential community service to the young women of Western Australia. The Foundation and its programs have been recognised at a local, state and national level.”
